MEMORIAL DAY RITES HELD

Parade of Veteran Groups; Program at Kelsey Features of Day

By LLOYD L. VYE

Members of Hangtown Camp, No. 138, United Spanish War Veterans; El Dorado Post 119, American Legion; a Firing Squad of the Placerville Naval Reserve; the E. C. H. S. Band under the direction of Charles W. Ball; over twenty Camp Caldor Civilian Conservation Corps youths, natively clad in khaki; sons of the American Legion; students of the E. C. H. S.; and youngsters of the Placerville Grammar School paid tribute to America's War Dead by marching in the El Dorado County Memorial Day Observance Parade and exercises held in Placerville Thursday morning.

Fitting observance ceremonies were conducted in Kelsey in the afternoon at the Kelsey Community Hall with a program arranged by Miss Margaret Kelly and conducted by the United States Spanish War Veterans assisted by members of the El Dorado Post of the American Legion.

As the paraders slogged down the War Veterans Memorial Building in a drizzling rain down Main Street, Parade Marshal Robert McClellan, a veteran of three years in the First U. S. Cavalry in the Philippines, commanded the march to halt and ordered Legionnaire C. E. Olmstead, in charge of the Placerville Naval Reserve firing squad, to fire a volley in protest to the fact that workmen were busy pouring concrete on the new Placerville Post Office on a sacred Memorial Day.

Carrying out the order of their chief, the Placerville Naval Reserve squad blasted a volley of shots into the rain clouds above as audible protest to the work being done on a Federal building on a day dedicated to soldiers who died in the services of the United States of America.

Thus, flanked on one side by Old Glory and on the other by the banners of the United Spanish War Veterans and the American Legion, El Dorado County registered its sentiment toward an unfortunate incident.

The Memorial Day Parade then proceeded on its shortened line of March to the historic Bell Tower and back to the War Memorial Building for appropriate services. Following the parade the firing squad, composed of Dick Ronzone, George Smith, Jr., Le Roy and Ellwyn Olmstead, Woodrow Wilbanks and Color Bearer Ted Mason, proceeded to the Placerville Union Cemetery where a Memory Salute erupted flame and white smoke in tribute to America's soldiers who have passed to the Great Teacher above.

Paraders and spectators crowded the War Veterans Memorial Building following the march to reverently take part in the exercises there, in place of the planned ceremony at Union Cemetery. Reverend Father M. V. Myles pronounced the invocation to the program which was in charge of T. C. Bryan of the U. S. W. V.

Robert McClellan then explained why the volley had been fired in front of the New Post Office, as most of the marchers and spectators had been unaware of the significance of the shots. A quartet, composed of W. P. Fassett of Camino; H. E. Dillinger, Max Bollman and A. S. Fox, Placerville, fittingly rendered "The Soldier's Farewell." Mrs. Lotta Kyburz, Shingle Springs, widow of El Dorado County's last Civil War Veteran recited "The Mother of a Soldier," with much emotion.

Dr. John Napier, president of the Placer Junior College at Auburn delivered the address of the day in (Continued on Page Four)

Barts Play W-R Team Sunday

Contest Is First At Home Of Second-Half Schedule

Placerville's Bartlets battle Wolf and Royer of Roseville in what should prove to be one of the season's best games at Bennett Park on Sunday at 2:30 p. m.

Placerville landed in a tie for fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh places in the Placer Nevada first half standings while the Roseville nine clinched top honors for that period of play.

Roseville Merchants defeated Wolf and Royer, 4 to 0, in a game played last Wednesday while "Smilin' Sam" Hern's lads beat the Merchants in a game played here during the first half.

Hern, Placerville Manager, has not made his Sunday's pitching selection, as yet, but feels he has a chucker capable of turning back the opponents.

GERMAN FLANDERS VICTORY IS COMPLETE; ALLIES RESIST

British, French Succeed in Large-Scale Troop Evacuation; Stroke at London Expected As Next German Move

By JOE ALEX MORRIS

United Press Staff Correspondent
The battle of Flanders was over today — valiantly fought and lost by the Allies — but British and French soldiers still resisted in the sandhills of the coast.

With their lives and their last bullets they were exacting from an overwhelming enemy—said to outnumber them 5 to 1 — a terrific price for the German victory. And they were delaying a Nazi thrust at Paris or London.

The chances that most of the Allies remnants, cut off, split into small bands, living in what survivors called the "hell of Flanders" might escape death or capture were estimated at not 1 in 100.

Regardless of odds, the fight went on.

How many allied troops already have been evacuated from Flanders was a military secret but some sources estimated that if 100,000 had been withdrawn the achievement would rank high in military annals. Possibly 270,000 French and British were estimated to be still in Flanders. There seemed little chance that any appreciable portion of these could escape but British seemed prepared to hold Corunna Line as long as hope existed that any allied remnants could cut their way through the estimated 600,000 Germans in the region to the sea.

The next German move, it seemed certain, will be a stroke at London or Paris or both. German propaganda agencies gushed with a torrent of stories, charging all manner of cruelties and atrocities against the French.

French forces stabbed into the German flank along the English channel today as Adolf Hitler's armies battled the stubbornly resisting remnants of allied troops in Flanders and prepared to strike at London or Paris.

HI CHATTER

BY Bill Dillinger
OUR CORRESPONDENT

Oh, the profs and the underclassmen do all the work, and the seniors get all the glory! The last few days of school hold forth glittering promises for the seniors, with the senior ball—ably decorated by the juniors!—on Wednesday night; senior assembly this Friday afternoon—the final ASB meeting of the year, at which time the new officers will be installed, awards will be given, the board of control will receive their certificates, and the seniors, in caps and gowns, will ascend to the seat of honor on the stage—and of course, for the seniors there's no more school after Wednesday. The annual Senior Lake trip will be held tomorrow, with the bus scheduled to leave the high school at 5:55 a. m. This is the treat looked forward to by the students since they entered high school. And this one day's frolic of boating, swimming, picnicking, and a general good time is said to be worth every bit of the four years of classroom drudgery that precedes it. The weather's fine—they hope—the grass is green, the water's wet, and the "eats committee—we need more chickens!" "Can any more of the seniors donate chickens?" and so far through the night—all of which prompted one envious freshman to say, "It looks like they're going to have a 'fowl' time."

Down But Not Out?
The Honor Society had their picture taken for the Girls League scrapbook—a sort of school history—and when Miss Harper tried to soothe the camera-shy by telling them that they were about to "go down in history," one boy piped up with, "Yeah, and I'm going down in physics and drama, too!"

College Pictures
Dean Olson of Placer Junior College addressed the Seniors on Tuesday afternoon, telling them about his school, and showing moving pictures of various school activities, including shots of students at work in a laboratory, in various classes, and possibly the most interesting to some, a few shots of football game.

Zero Hour Nears
Finals to right of them, finals to left of them, finals in front of them, onward they marched, the 600. But stay with it another few days, for at 3:55 p. m. on June 2, the armistice will be signed.

Who Lost What?
Lost: 30 fountain pens, 4 wrist watches, 1 gold chain, 2 sets of car keys, 3 keys on a ring, 1 case for glasses, etc. All these, and many more similar articles may be reclaimed at the office. But though several textbooks have been lost, nary a one has been turned in, proving that when someone loses a

LOTUS NOTES

After 60 years Charlie Rasmusson of Lotus again became a full-fledged member in Gold Trail Grange at Coloma by taking his third and fourth degrees on Wednesday evening, May 23. At the end of the meeting a cake made by Mrs. Will Miller of Gold Hill was given away and the proceeds went to the Grange fund. Mrs. Miller won the cake back and not wanting to take it home gave it to Mrs. Andrew Marchini. The cake was a beauty but we did not get a chance to sample it.

Our school here closed on Friday for the summer vacation and the teacher with her pupils, together with their parents spent the day at a picnic at the Marshall Park. Ice cream, cakes and candies, furnished by the teacher were on the list of eatables and enjoyed by all. Mrs. Belle Esper is our teacher and no doubt the trustees will again employ her for the next term as she is a lady well liked by her scholars and all in the Uniontown district.

A lady and gentleman from Sacramento were in our town the past week looking for a place to open an antique shop in Coloma, and also gathering up old time relics. We informed them that most all the old time relics had been gathered up by Mrs. Brame who runs a shop in Placerville. They informed us they would call and see us again next week. Their name we failed to get. Someone stole a small truck from Rudy Kunig in Coloma and most all of his plumbing tools on Monday night or early Tuesday morning. So far we have not heard of Rudy getting his truck back.

Mrs. Verna Brame and Mrs. Ida Overaker of Placerville spent Tuesday evening with Judge Rasmusson. On Thursday evening Mrs. Brame and Scott Ramsey called on the Judge. Our ditch agent, Clyde Thayer, and wife and C. W. Delameter were among those from here who went over to the county seat Saturday afternoon.

Carl Nielog of Cool, our supervisor, was a Lotus caller Friday afternoon enroute to his home after attending to business matters at the county seat.

Ed Sayers, the meter reader for the P. G. & E. at Placerville, was checking up on the company's juice used here on Monday last. Ed was on schedule time this month.

Newton Grout, one of our Coloma merchants and service station men, has been assisting W. J. Pugh a few days the past week in making a road from the county road up to the Pugh residence. A nice piece of work the two men made.

Hector Williamson brought us a nice mess of fish Saturday morning all cleaned and ready for the pan. They were taken from his lake. He knows we like fish and we extend our many thanks for them.

Bob Beach, his son Louis, and Bob's sister-in-law, Mrs. Alice Beach, late of San Francisco, who is visiting at Bob's home, came out from their Placerville home and spent a short time at the Rasmusson home with the Judge and his sister Saturday afternoon. Alice never comes up from the bay city but what she comes to Lotus to see her old home and see her friends.

The weather the past week has not been so warm with partly cloudy days. The warmest day for the week was on Tuesday last when the mercury hit the high point of 94 degrees.

Fred Gilliam and Fred Rasmusson accompanied by their lady friend Mrs. Lucille, better known as Bessie Davis, came up from their Sacramento homes Sunday forenoon and spent the day at the Rasmusson home, returning home toward evening.

Cecil Barker and wife came over from Placerville Sunday evening and made a short visit with Judge Rasmusson. This is Cecil's first visit to Lotus for some months past, although he has been attending a number of the card parties at Coloma.

The card party given at the Coloma Community Hall for the benefit of the Episcopal Church of Placerville was in every respect a success. Twenty-two tables were filled and many prizes were awarded to high score holders. We regret to note there was no representation from the Georgetown section at all.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bacchi, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Reaside, Miss Helen Reaside were of last week to attend the Boy Scout card party. Mrs. Irma Lawyer and daughter, Ethel Tidd, were in Lotus Saturday evening from Uncle Tom's. Both ladies then played whist at the card party at Coloma hall.

Mrs. Ella Norris and Mrs. Dorothy Metcalfe were Lotus callers during the week. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McCloud entertained at an evening of cards on Friday.

Mrs. Lottie Galleher drove to Placerville Friday.

Arnold Luneman of Pilot Hill was making a few calls in Lotus Sunday.

Archie Lawyer was among those who enjoyed the dance at Cool on Saturday evening.

CRIMSON WARNING

by RICHARD SALE

Jane Hall, girl detective, is summoned to the home of Emory Harding on Skeleton Island, off the coast of Maine, to guard his daughter Audrey, whose life has been threatened in a letter, typewritten in red, demanding that Harding relinquish a valuable ruby he bought from an old sea captain, Albert Santry. He also sends for Bruce Kirby, young museum curator. That night, Santry is murdered—poisoned by a deadly snake's venom injected with a hypodermic needle. A little later, Harding himself is attacked in the same manner. He is treated with an antidote, but his chances are slim. Among the numerous house guests are Dr. Straater, family physician; and Frank Bitherbee, Audrey's fiancé. Kirby takes up a vigil at Harding's bedside. About two-thirty in the morning, Harding regains consciousness and is on the point of speaking when Kirby feels something near his temple—and knows no more.

CHAPTER XXVII

AT THREE o'clock, Frank Bitherbee, in pajamas and dressing gown, left his room and went down the hall to Harding's door. It was locked, so he knocked.

There was no response. Bitherbee knocked again. Still no answer. He scowled in puzzlement and banged on the door more loudly.

The echoes of the blows floated down the hall and brought Dr. Straater to the door of his room adjusting his pipe.

"What the devil is the matter?" he demanded. "Must you wake up the whole house?"

"Something is wrong, Doctor," said Bitherbee anxiously. "I was supposed to relieve Kirby at three o'clock, but he doesn't answer and the door is locked."

"Oh, he's probably dozed," said Straater. "Go around through Castian's room to the terrace. See if you can get in through the French doors. I'll wager Kirby is sound asleep. Fine guardian he is!"

Bitherbee disappeared into Castian's room. Dr. Straater came out into the hall, pulling a robe on.

A MOMENT later, Bitherbee came dashing back, his face green with horror.

"Doctor!" he cried. "He's dead! Kirby's dead! Lying on the floor beside Mr. Harding's bed! And the French doors are locked, too!"

Dr. Straater paled. "Here, get hold of yourself," he snapped. "Don't go shouting around. We'll have to break in. Come on—we'll smash the glass of the French doors and unlock them."

Bitherbee dashed followed the doctor, who hurried through Castian's empty room, out onto the terrace and to the French doors of Harding's room. Here, he and Bitherbee stopped and looked in. Kirby was lying on his face, one arm outstretched, the other curled beneath him.

Bitherbee suddenly grabbed Straater by the arm and pointed at a hole in the glass of one of the doors. It was not a big hole—about the size of a nickel, with cracks radiating from it.

"Bullet hole!" gasped Bitherbee. Dr. Straater nodded. He crooked his elbow and smashed the glass at a spot alongside the lock. He put his hand through the hole he had made, turned the key, and then pushed the two doors open. Grimly, he and Bitherbee entered.

THE doctor instantly bent over Kirby, but before he could make an examination Bitherbee grabbed his shoulder. He looked up frantically at Bitherbee, mutely gesticulating toward the bed.

Dr. Straater turned his eyes in that direction and saw what had stricken Bitherbee dumb. In the center of Harding's forehead was a little blue hole. The mouth was agape and the eyes staring.

"Dead," muttered Bitherbee. "Without warning, he gagged. He turned quickly and went into the adjoining bathroom, closing the door after him."

"Big help," grunted Dr. Straater. He turned Kirby over and examined the wound on Kirby's head. "Lucky," he murmured. "Very lucky."

Bitherbee came out of the bathroom. "Sorry," he said, apologetically. "It—sort of turned my stomach over."

"Get some warm water and a cloth," ordered Dr. Straater. "I'll get my bag—no, it's already here isn't it?" He caught sight of his medical kit where he had left it after he had attended Harding.

"Water?" said Bitherbee stupidly. "But—"

"Kirby's alive," said Dr. Straater curtly. "He's not badly hurt at all. The bullet that hit him only furrowed a path across his scalp. But it knocked him completely out."

"Oh, thank heaven!" breathed Bitherbee. "Thank heaven for that! He—looked dead." He turned excitedly back to the bathroom. "I'll get the water!"

"DON'T spill it in your hurry," remarked Dr. Straater caustically. "He's in no danger."

He opened his black bag and took out what he needed. Bitherbee brought the water. The doctor washed Kirby's wound, then stitched the lips of the bullet's slice together. Bitherbee gritted his teeth as he watched the operation. Kirby remained unconscious, but moaned, and stirred vaguely.

"That's got it," said Straater. He painted the whole thing with iodine and, after that, held ammonia under Kirby's nose, bringing him back to sensibility.

Kirby's eyes fluttered open, recognized Straater.

"Harding," he muttered. Dr. Straater shook his head. "Dead," he answered. "And you might have been. Another inch and you'd have been a narrow escape."

Kirby sighed and closed his eyes. Dr. Straater got a roll of bandages from his bag, raised Kirby to a sitting position, and began to bind up his head.

Just then, there came a knock on the door.

SAN JOSE HIGH SCHOOL HISTORY CLASS VISITS OLD HANGTOWN

A group of 20 students from the San Jose High School visited Placerville on Decoration Day. Traveling by school bus and chaperoned by Mrs. Alma Kumble, the party were led by historian C. H. Shreve. Mr. Shreve has a novel method of teaching his students history. He calls it "Living History." Each week end a group of students, boys and girls, visit some historical location in the state. This way they obtain actual facts and have an opportunity of viewing the scenery surrounding the historical spots of Northern California.

The party were welcomed to Placerville by Wallace M. Ripley, secretary of the chamber of commerce and the staff of the Pony Express Courier. The students visited the museum and other historical spots in Placerville, and were then escorted to Coloma, to view Marshall's Monument.

Through the courtesy of Mr. Frank Gallagher, Bob Johnson and Mr. Rosenberger, the popular postmaster of Coloma, the students were housed for the night in the Coloma Community Hall. They plan on leaving Friday morning for Emigrants Pass, returning by way of Lake Tahoe and will pass through Placerville again Sunday morning on their return trip to Sacramento, where they will visit Fort Sutter Museum.

SUNDAY AND MONDAY at the Empire Theater feature Clark Gable and Joan Crawford, above, in "Strange Cargo".

ROBERT MONTGOMERY PLAYS IMPORTANT ROLE AS "EARL OF CHICAGO," AFTER TWO YEARS' WAITING

Departing from his familiar role of the wise-cracking playboy, Robert Montgomery has created the most unusual characterization of his screen career as Silky Kilmount, Chicago gangster, in "The Earl of Chicago," which opens tonight at the Empire Theater. It is no formula gangster part, but has a surprising dramatic twist when Silky becomes an English Earl by inheritance.

"It's a part I waited two years to play," Montgomery said. "Silky interested me originally because my hobby is criminology. I studied and lived with him until at times he actually seemed to exist."

Montgomery amazed everyone who saw him on the set during the filming of the picture. He changed his voice, pitching it effectively higher, took on mannerisms foreign to him, altered his facial expressions and his actions. In the interest of a realistic portrayal, he went to J. Edgar Hoover for the inside on gangsters.

"Every once in a while," declared Montgomery, "an actor is fortunate enough to discover something about a character that makes him different. I was anxious to make Silky a real gangster, not a screen gangster. One thing Hoover told me has influenced my playing of Silky. There are gangsters, and it is not an unusual characteristic, who are afraid of guns. That sounds like a paradox but it is an interesting highlight of the gangster mind."

may be important. The Italian people have been carefully prepared for it. Mussolini, however, has not committed himself, at least, not openly. It may be a question of what he decides Italy stands to gain—or to lose.

Reports circulated that Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels had been urgently summoned to Chancellor Adolf Hitler's field headquarters to prepare some important announcement but there was no official confirmation.

The German high command in its morning communiqué claimed that the bulk of the French forces of the north have been killed or captured but admitted that isolated units still are fighting. The British were described as fighting strongly along the coast to withdraw as many troops as possible.

The sinking of an allied destroyer and five scattered allied planes was claimed and loss of two German planes was admitted.

FOG HALTS NAZIS

BERLIN, (UP)—Thick fog covered the English Channel and Flanders coast today, the official DNB news agency reported, protecting evacuating allied troops from German air attacks.

The news agency indicated that, because of weather conditions, the German air fleet had been forced to discontinue, for the time being the terrific rain of bombs and machine gun fire with which it harassed the allied retreat.

The agency admitted that the British are making a stand around Dunkirk in an apparent effort to protect evacuation operations to the last moment. However, it was said that only a few remnants of the French forces in Flanders remained in action.

which he paid a glowing tribute to the nation's heroic dead and pleaded for a united America and stressed the need for a strong National Defense.

"God Bless America" was sung with feeling by A. S. Fox. The spectators sang two choruses, led by Mr. Fox, as a special request number.

The benediction was pronounced by the Reverend Father M. V. Myles.

An intermittent drizzle of "California Dew" failed to dampen the spirit of the services conducted at Kelsey after the Placerville Naval Reserve Firing Squad, under the direction of Paul Smith and Duncan Bathurst, Placerville Legionnaires, had fired a salute over the graves of veterans in the Kelsey cemetery.

R. McClellan was the chairman and T. S. Martor, adjutant of the El Dorado Post of the American Legion, delivered the main address, pointing out the fact that American Democracy was fighting for its existence in a world ruled, for the most part, by Dictators. He stressed the fact that the establishment of a workable national defense was perhaps the only solution to the present international crisis confronting the United States.

Patriotic songs and verses were fittingly presented by members of the Kelsey School under the direction of Miss Huff, their teacher. Mrs. Marie Sharp of Placerville pronounced the invocation and the benediction.

Commander M. E. Wright, of the American Legion Post 119, Placerville, headed a delegation of Legionnaires composed of T. J. Maul, H. E. Hunsaker and Frank Rich-
